

A NOTABLE WEDDING

Miss Janie Smith Sutherland to Mr. Edward Ware Barrett.

THE DECORATIONS SUPERB.

Many Attendants—The Costumes of the Bride and the Bridesmaids. The Supper—Other Weddings in the State Yesterday.

DANVILLE, VA., December 18.—(Special.)—No marriage was ever celebrated in Danville in such elaborate manner as that of Miss Janie Sutherland Smith, daughter of Colonel Francis L. Smith, and granddaughter of Mrs. William T. Sutherland, to Mr. Edward Ware Barrett, of Augusta, Ga., which was solemnized at the historic Sutherland mansion this evening.

The wedding ceremony was performed in the drawing-room precisely at 9 o'clock by Bishop William W. Duncan, of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, he, twenty-four years ago, having officiated at the wedding of the bride's mother, when Miss Janie Sutherland, the only daughter of Major William T. Sutherland, was united in marriage with Colonel Francis Lee Smith, of Alexandria.

On the death of her mother the bride of to-night, then 3 years of age, was left to the loving and tender care of her grandparents; thus it was Miss Janie Sutherland Smith was reared in Danville and has ever been the object of universal admiration. She is a woman of a sweet and lovely disposition and noble impulses.

The palatial residence in which to-night's nuptials were celebrated has a historic interest, for it was here, by the courtesy of the owner, President Jefferson Davis had a temporary home in the closing scenes of the war; and thus it became the Southern Confederacy's last Executive Mansion. To-night's event was a scene of loveliness, and joy reigned within the mansion's walls.

SUPERB DECORATIONS.
The decorations were superb and in harmony with the season. The walls, columns, and ceilings were adorned with strands of smilax, ropes of ivy, and sprays of holly. These, with palms, ferns, carnations, and roses of various hues, gave to every apartment an effect of exquisite floral beauty.

About two hundred guests were in attendance, coming from various sections of Virginia and other States, and who gathered in the handsomely-decorated drawing-rooms, the rich evening gowns and the many types of southern beauty and manhood, under the soft and mellow lights, made an enchanting sight.

A few minutes before 9 o'clock the bridal party assembled in the second hall, and at the last stroke of the clock, announcing the appointed hour, a splendid orchestra, hid behind an embankment of ferns, played the wedding march from Strauss's "Midsummer Night's Dream."

Mr. Harry Chabonier, of Athens, Ga., and Miss Mattie Clark, of Danville, were the bridesmaids.

Mr. E. S. Watson, of Danville, and Miss Mary Penn, of Danville, were the bridesmaids.

Mr. Charles R. Crisp, of Americus, Ga., and Miss Maria Selden, of Danville, were the bridesmaids.

Mr. Archibald Butts, of Washington, D. C., and Miss Cornelia Boykin, of Baltimore, were the bridesmaids.

The bridesmaids wore gowns of ivory satin, with Marie Antoinette fleecings of mousseline de soie, and carried large bunches of American Beauty roses, tied with ribbon of the same shade.

After they came the maid of honor, Miss Gray Morehead, of North Carolina. She wore a gown of ivory satin, with chiffon draperies, and carried American Beauty roses.

Suddenly the notes from the orchestra were changed into the celebrated "Aria," from L'Eclair, and the bride entered leaning on the arm of her father. The groom, accompanied by his brother and best man, Mr. Gould Barrett, of Augusta, Ga., entered from a side door and joined the bride at the altar.

THE BRIDE'S GOWN.
The bride's gown was a heavy, white, satin dress; the skirt a queen of lace, the bodice of chiffon and satin was close-fitting, and closed at the throat with a deep fall of Brussels lace over the monogrammed sleeves, intermingled with half hidden wreaths of white carnations. The bride veil was held in place by diamond and pearl ornaments, the gift of the groom. The bride carried a bouquet of white violets and lily of the valley. The handkerchiefs and fan used by the bride were those carried by her mother on her wedding-day in 1871.

There was great stillness as the bride and groom met at the altar, and the Bishop Duncan performed the impressive marriage ceremony of the Methodist Church.

THE SUPPER.
After receiving congratulations, the bride and groom retired to the smaller dining-room and occupied seats around the curve of a table made horse-shoe shape, crystallized candles in small silver chandeliers restoring the name of the prevailing floral decorations in this room were smilax and white carnations. A dainty wedding supper, prepared by M. de la Roche, of Richmond, was served.

The other guests were served in the large dining hall, which was decorated in pink, with La France roses.

In the second-floor hallway were displayed the many valuable presents from various parts of the country. The decorations here were holly, smilax, and Madame Testout roses. There was one very unique and original present, and no doubt attracted the most attention. It being an epitaphium, by Mr. Frank L. Staunton, of the Atlanta Constitution, written by him and embroidered on the gown. The groom is one of the best known members of the corps of Washington correspondents, having been in the press gallery for some years. He is a graduate of Washington and Lee University. He has been the Washington correspondent of the Atlanta Constitution for nine years; has been abroad on two missions, and spent four months in Japan and China, writing about the results of the war between those countries. Besides his newspaper work, he has been for four years confidential friend and secretary of Mr. Trip.

I Was an Invalid
Along I did not expect ever to be well again. I was confined to the house for weeks with nervous debility and female weakness having a strength, appetite or energy. A friend urged me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I did and I was soon able to do my own work and feel that life is worth living. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to a afflicted in like manner. Mrs. M. I. Hoskins, Manassas, Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrett left on the midnight train for Washington and thence to the Pacific coast.

THE GUESTS.
Among those attending the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brooks, of Knoxville; Mrs. Dr. Tyree, and Mrs. William Prescott, of Atlanta; the groom's father and sisters and other friends, who came in a special-car from Augusta; Judge and Mrs. Newman, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. B. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Meador, and others from Atlanta; Representative L. E. Livingston; Hon. Thomas Settle, of North Carolina; Hon. George H. Denson, of Virginia; Hon. John M. Allen, of Mississippi; and Hon. Claude A. Swanson, of Virginia; also a number of Washington correspondents.

Ex-Speaker Crisp and Senator Gordon, of Georgia, declined to attend the wedding, but were detained in Washington on account of the Venezuelan affair.

PRINCE EDWARD MARRIAGES.
One in Farmville and Another in the County.

FARMVILLE, VA., December 18.—(Special.)—A marriage to-day of universal interest to the society of Farmville was that of Miss Julia Johnson, of this place, and Mr. Joseph Dupuy Eggleston, of Asheville.

The ceremony took place in the Presbyterian church, the pastor, Rev. Dr. E. H. Harding, officiating. Promptly at one o'clock the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, finely rendered by Mr. Frank Cunningham, of Richmond, were heard.

The bride entered the church in the following order: To the right and left, respectively, E. W. Venable, of Farmville; Robert E. Stokes, of Felden, Va.; with Dr. W. Morton Holladay, of Farmville; and Mr. J. M. Stokes, of Farmville, with Miss Nellie Eggleston, of Asheville, as bridesmaids.

The bride was attired in a gray traveling suit, tailor-made, and carried in her hand a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Another very interesting, though quiet, marriage was solemnized this afternoon. It was a home wedding, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. J. H. Hill, the residence of County Commissioner of the Revenue, William Clark, near Richmond.

The bride was Miss Mattie Clark, and the groom was Mr. J. H. Hill. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. W. M. Clark, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, near Richmond.

Court Matters To Reduce Assessments—Personal Notes.
The December term of Roanoke County Court, which is now in session, will be mainly taken up hearing motions to reduce assessments on property.

Letters were received here yesterday from Honolulu from Robert Carper, who is circling the globe in the interest of the Bonaire Machine Company. They were dated November 28th, and stated that in three weeks from then he expected to be in Japan.

Colonel A. M. Bowman, a well-known breeder of pure-bred stock, has recently connected himself with the monthly paper, Farm, Finance, and Factory, published in Roanoke, and will hereafter edit the agricultural department of said publication. Last Sunday morning Bishop Penick, late missionary bishop to Africa, preached the octagonal pulpit in St. Paul's church here in the interest of missions among the colored people of this country. A few days ago, as Joseph Wertz, a farmer of the county was cutting wood, the axe slipped and buried itself in his foot, inflicting it so badly that half of the bone had to be amputated.
